TLC Tips– Navigating the Transplant Journey

Before & During Evaluation

- Each transplant center has unique evaluation criteria. Ask your hepatologist which aligns best with your condition and circumstances.
- Keep communication open between your liver specialist and the transplant team to coordinate referrals and updates.
- Consider geography, insurance coverage, living-donor availability, and post-transplant support when choosing where to list.
- It's appropriate, and often beneficial, to be evaluated at more than one center to expand your options and reduce waiting-time risks.

After Transplant

- Use a daily medication schedule. Never miss your immunosuppressants.
- Keep an updated list of all medications and transplant-team contacts.
- Avoid live vaccines; confirm vaccine timing with your care team.
- Contact your transplant team immediately for fever, jaundice, swelling, pain, or confusion.
- Ask your coordinator about financial counseling for medications, travel, and lodging.
- Prioritize emotional health. Join support groups or peer networks to stay connected and encouraged.

Caregiver Well-Being

- Being a caregiver is both vital and demanding. Take time to rest, seek support, and care for yourself. Your well-being directly strengthens your loved one's recovery and stability after transplant.
